Week in Review:

1. No burnup list this from the previous week
2. The GTT was very informative and gave a layout for how the assignments should be done.
3. The input and feedback was very positive. I found that most people are just as motivated as I am. There may be some opportunities for future collaboration with some of the other classmates. My next steps are to network more with classmates.

Anchor Points: *How will you accomplish this?

I will accomplish this by sticking with what has gotten me this far and seeking out any other methods that will help me reach my goals. Learning from past mistakes is what have gotten me this far so I will make any adjustments I need to if what I am doing isn't effective in my learning and experience. Networking more will help me dramatically so I will be more social in school, work, and in my regular day life. Social media is becoming a bigger part of my life and I will be social in it instead of a quiet observer.

Reflect and Connect:

This past week was relatable because it was a great test in time management which is a common theme in my degree and future line of work. It was a valuable experience because I learned more about organization and learning to estimate how long projects will take me. I feel like I will be able to be more efficient now when doing projects. My results thus far at Full Sail have been good so I expect the same throughout my time here and in the future wherever that may be. In the past I was never taught how to learn properly or effectively, at Full Sail I am learning how to learn while learning. So much more of what is being taught is being absorbed and this will have a great effect on my future development.
